

WARNING OF CATASTROPHE

Michael Davitt Writes of Conditions in China.

HE HAS HOPE IN ZIONISM

Necessity of the Actual Situation, Says the Writer, in His Graphic Account of Things as He Saw Them.

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Fresh from a visit to the great centers of Jewish population in Russia, Michael Davitt has written his estimate of the conditions and of the future of these people in a volume entitled "Within the Pale," which will be issued to-morrow, from the press of A. S. Barnes and Company.

"The Jew as he is ruled and oppressed by Russian officials, is a far greater danger to Russian autocracy than anti-Semitism is to the Israelites within the pale," declares Mr. Davitt, in the preface to his work. "The darker," he continues, "was candidly answered by all representative Russians from whom I solicited light and information."

FURTHER CATASTROPHE.
Mr. Davitt sees further catastrophe ahead because of the economic and other conditions. "The fact of the economic and social conditions within the pale of settlement," he writes, "are so objective that the warning they give of a coming catastrophe cannot be ignored. It would be like leaving an epidemic of smallpox in the hands of a neglectful physician. The condition of things is fully explained and expressed by the term 'unnatural.' It is analogous to a situation which would result from a Federal law compelling every European born artisan and laborer within the whole United States to reside inside of Pennsylvania, and to be forbidden to seek employment outside the cities and towns of that State. The murderous competition for employment, the deadly rivalry for existence, the poverty and social wretchedness which such a condition of things would create—part from the operation of coercive laws—can readily be imagined by the American reader. But this is no overdrawn picture of the economic anarchy prevailing within the Russian pale of Jewish settlement."

BELIEVES IN ZIONISM.
Mr. Davitt asserts that the Czar can accomplish much for the Jews in his domain by destroying the legend of the blood atonement. "M. DePlehuys and the Tsar," he avers, "can accomplish one good and blessed work, if so minded, without altering a single article of the Russian law. The Czar can destroy in Russia the atrocious legend about the annual killing of Christian children by Jews, as an alleged part of the blood atonement in Hebrew paschal rites. In this humane and Christian task he is entitled to the co-operation of the Emperor of Austria, the King of Romania, and the heads of other Balkan States, where this story of ritual murder is constantly circulated, and not infrequently as a part of political propaganda. There ought to be a truly Christian crusade waged against this infamous product of ancient superstition and hate."

"Discussing the amelioration of the Jews' condition," Mr. Davitt says: "I have come from a journey through the Jews' Pale, a convinced believer in the remedy of Zionism. I failed to see any other that can offer an equal hope of success. The Jew is in a deplorable situation, and faces the growing perils of the Russian Jew with a courageous plan of reparation. Hope for partial or ultimate emancipation in Russia, there is none. Other countries cannot be expected to relieve Russia of the unhappy victims of oppression and poverty. Where there are they go?"

MOTLEY CROWD

Screwmens in New Orleans Ready to Resist Efforts to Lend.

(By Associated Press.)
NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 9.—The wharves to-day were crowded with a motley assemblage of white and black screwmen and their sympathizers, prepared for any attempt the steamer agents might make to begin loading with the men imported from St. Louis. A large police force was on hand to preserve order. The steamer Colman, on which the strike-breakers are housed, remained in mid-stream. A dozen skiffs put off from the wharves, containing screwmen and their sympathizers, and hung about the Colman, seeking to gather information from the men on board and to urge some of them to come ashore. One man did accept the invitation, slid down a rope and was hauled into a skiff. He was given an ovation when he reached shore.

The screwmen were in conference with lawyers to-day, seeking to have the authorities made before United States Commissioner Craig that United States citizens were being deprived of their liberty on a British ship.

Scrofula

It is commonly inherited. Few are entirely free from it. Pale, weak, puny children are afflicted with it in nine cases out of ten, and many adults suffer from it.

Common indications are bunces in the neck, abscesses, cutaneous eruptions, inflamed eyelids, sore ears, rickets, catarrh, wasting, and general debility.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Eradicate it, positively and absolutely. This statement is based on the thousands of permanent cures these medicines have wrought.

"My daughter had scrofula, with eleven pores on her neck and about her ears. Hood's Sarsaparilla was highly recommended and she took it and was cured. She is now in good health." Mrs. J. H. Jones, Parker City, Ind.

Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

IS SHARPLY QUESTIONED

Tillman Again on Stand in His Own Behalf.

LOOKING FOR TROUBLE

Felt Sure That There Would Be Shooting When He Met Gonzales—The End of the Trial is Now Near.

(By Associated Press.)
LEXINGTON, S. C., Oct. 9.—James H. Tillman was on the stand to-day over four hours, a witness in his own behalf. For one full hour he was subjected to the fire of cross-examination by counsel for the State. But another witness was placed on the stand by the defense, after which the defense rested. Witnesses in rebuttal placed on the stand by the State were heard during the closing hours. Splendid progress was made to-day, toward the conclusion of the trial, which already has consumed nearly two weeks.

The defendant, resuming his testimony to-day, was asked as to the impression made upon him as to Mr. Gonzales' condition of mind by the evidence, a number being indicated by the attorney. Replying, he said that he was impressed by Mr. Gonzales' testimony. He said he did not make threats in Edgefield or on a train.

The defendant was asked with reference to statements attributed to him while engaged in conversation in his room in a hotel in Columbia on August 20th or 21st of last year. He said: "The conversation Dr. Adams referred to took place when a number of my friends were in the room, and it was a running, general conversation. Sometimes I would be talking to one and then another; sometimes three or four would be talking to me. Some of them came into the room and told me about some new rumor concerning what Mr. Gonzales would do to me, and I made the remark that if he attempted to do that I don't think I could help it. I said, 'I would kill him.'"

He said further: "I had been told in different places in South Carolina that Mr. Gonzales had stated that he did not come to Columbia and see about him. I had said upon other stumps during the campaign."

CARRIE DA PISTOL.
He said the different statements were made in connection with threats reported to him. The defendant said further that he had been reported that the opera house in Columbia where a campaign meeting was to be held was to be packed, and that he was not to be let out alive, and he stated that he said that if that rumored threat was carried out, "I would be the 4-4-4 in South Carolina."

Answering counsel he said he had sent word to Mr. Gonzales to attend the meeting at Columbia and make his charges. He said he did not feel safe to go unarmed while in Columbia. He said he did not have a pistol in his hip pocket prior to the day of the shooting, as testified to by two Columbia boys, but said he did have one in a sling under his coat, showing where it was carried at that time.

Mr. Tillman exhibited the automatic pistol to the jury, saying that because of a peculiar shock it could not be carried in a hip pocket. He added that it was a bottle he had in his hip pocket at the State house.

Mr. Tillman put on the overcoat which he said he wore on the day of the shooting and stood before the jury, showing that it had a pocket in it. Placing it in his hand, he said that it was there where he drew the pistol from. He said he reached back there and cocked it when he saw Gonzales.

After detailing his movements about the State house after the adjournment of the Senate on September 24th, the defendant said that in company with Senators Tatbird and Brown he started down town.

SAW GONZALES.
"Just before I got to the transfer station I noticed Mr. Gonzales come down the street and looking at me. I said to the defendant, 'I never took my eyes off him, nor did he take his eyes off me.'"

At this point in the witness' narrative a blue print of the scene of the shooting was produced, which was looked at by the counsel, while the defendant indicated positions as he proceeded with his statement, saying: "Mr. Gonzales got about along there (indicating). He was coming down the street and to the curb. We three were walking about in the middle of the sidewalk, as near as I can recollect it. Just before Mr. Gonzales got to me he cut across toward me."

Answering counsel, he said Mr. Tatbird was on the curb and that he had passed between Senator Tatbird and the curb.

The witness was asked to state what Gonzales did and what appearance he had.

"When he started to cut across the pavement toward me," was the reply, "his overcoat was tightly buttoned up and both his hands were thrust in his overcoat pocket. The thumb of both of his hands was outside of his overcoat pocket until he started to cut across the sidewalk, coming directly toward me, and then the thumb of his right hand disappeared in his pocket, and it happened almost directly in front of my eyes. I was looking at him and he was looking at me, and I said 'I got your message,' and fired."

ONLY ONE SHOT.
The defendant stated that when he said "message" he had in mind the remark made by Captain White and Mr. Holcomb.

Answering counsel, he said he did not fire a second shot because Mr. Gonzales did not return his fire.

"I fired I fired I fired," said the defendant, "whether the pistol had worked or not, and I threw the barrel over my coat sleeve and I was expecting Mr. Gonzales to fire on me, and was fixing to shoot again. He did not fire and took out of his pocket a small pistol. He said he did not hear Mr. Gonzales say, 'Shoot again, you coward.'"

"Mr. Gonzales raised up by me to the corner of the transfer station," he said, "and wheeled round in a few feet and seemed to stop and hesitate, and then he turned around and came back to the corner and faced Main Street looking in the direction of the State office, and I immediately thought what was in his mind, and I thought I would be attacked from that quarter and that is what made me shoot. He fired the shot."

The defendant's attention was called to the testimony of the witnesses who have testified that they took messages to him, when he repeated what had been said, saying in one instance: "I am sure I received at least a thousand messages in the State. I can't remember everything that was said."

EXPECTED TROUBLE.
He said that in view of all the rumors carried to him he expected trouble when ever he went to Columbia. When he said something to the effect that he might have to live in the penitentiary, as testified to the defendant stated that that was said jokingly, and he said that it was the editorial in the State was true, he might expect to do that.

The cross-examination was conducted by General Belenger, and in answer to his questions the defendant said the differences between himself and Gonzales although he had written a letter to Mr. Gonzales in 1893 thanking him for a kindness and that their differences were at an end at that time. He identified the letter, which was offered in evidence by the State and read.

On further cross-examination he said he had no ill feelings toward Mr. Gonzales until the attacks were made on him about the time he was in the army.

"You spoke of him severely on every stump in the State," queried Mr. Belenger.

"Pretty near every one," he replied.

Mr. Tillman having stated that he did not care to get into any trouble while Lieutenant-Governor, Mr. Belenger inquired: "You did not mind carrying threatening weapons while you were Lieutenant-Governor?"

"Not when my life was threatened. The law gives me that right," replied the defendant.

SAID HE WOULD SHOOT.
"Did I say to a friend that when you met Mr. Gonzales, you would shoot this thing out?"

"I made the statement that it was the general understanding that when we met we would have to shoot it out."

The last witness for the defense was W. H. Hays, a friend of the defendant. He swore that he saw a pistol in Mr. Gonzales' pocket while the latter was at the State house.

On cross-examination he described Mr. Gonzales as a man about four and a half feet tall.

He said he had left the stand the State immediately put on a number of character witnesses, attacking the testimony and veracity of R. H. Holcomb, one of the defendant's witnesses who testified to the shooting. Other witnesses testified to statements he made about the shooting. One of the rebuttal witnesses testified that J. H. Tillman was in the office of the State in 1893.

When court adjourned at 6 o'clock to-night the end of the trial was nearer in sight than it has been at any time in the last few days.

FOOT-BALL TO-DAY

Richmond and Fredericksburg Colleges to Meet at road-Street Park.

The first game of the season will be played this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at road-Street Park between Richmond College and Fredericksburg. Both teams are in good condition, and the prospects are that it will be one of the most exciting games of the year.

The game of the season will be played under the first time to-day, and to the old foot-ball enthusiasts the check-board appearance of the field will present a strange spectacle. The new rules will make the game much more open and interesting. The game will be played in a spectacular run and peculiar formations. The quarter-back will be a much more important position than formerly, and it is more than probable that most of the sensational plays will be made by him.

For the lovers of blood and thunder, however, the game has lost none of its interest. The restrictions occur only in the center of the field, and within the twenty-five yard line, and the game is played the same as before. The tendency, if anything, is to make the game even rougher within these limits than ever before, as men will probably save themselves for these final spurts.

Richmond College put the following line-up on the field:

BRILLIANT SUCCESS

Lynchburg Show Passed All Expectations.

GREATEST ENTHUSIASM

Well-Known Names of Equine Favorites to Be Found in List of Winners of the Events of the Last Day.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
LYNCHBURG, VA., Oct. 9.—The third day of the Lynchburg Horse Show has come to a close. Yesterday there were two entertainments, but to-day there was only one. The doors were thrown open to-night at 7 o'clock and when the hour for the beginning of the show had arrived, the big arena was filled with a splendid crowd, all eager to see the horses, hear the music, and mingle in the great assemblage.

Although three performances had already been given, one on Wednesday and two on Thursday, there was apparently not the slightest diminution of enthusiasm and the size of the crowd seemed to prove that Lynchburgers would patronize the big show if it continued in operation for a month.

The events of the night were of a most interesting character. The horses looked better than ever, their spirit and activity proved very conclusively that they find the exercise of a horse show the very thing to tone up their nerve and muscles. It is very certain that no horse in the country or anywhere else has exhibited a better lot of horses than have been seen at the Lynchburg entertainment and the fact that the entries were more numerous the general character of the horses more attractive, and the satisfaction of everybody more pronounced, demonstrated the fact that the Lynchburg Horse Show Association has come to stay and that is confronted with a brilliant and successful future.

SUMMARIES.
The events of this evening resulted as follows:

First event—horse and runabout—Entries: Maxwell, Cady, Yell's, Lord, Almy and Lady Marjorie; C. S. Adams, Miss Virginia and Justus Collins; W. M. Carroll's Florida; A. G. Clark's Helen; J. H. Hays' Gladys; J
